An excellent and renowned programme that allows students to acquire recognised expertise in a sought-after specialisation such as common law and offers varied and progressive career prospects in France and internationally, in companies, law firms and institutions (European Commission, Competition Authority, DGCCRF, etc.). The programme is also particularly well suited to preparing a doctoral thesis and a career as a lecturer and researcher.

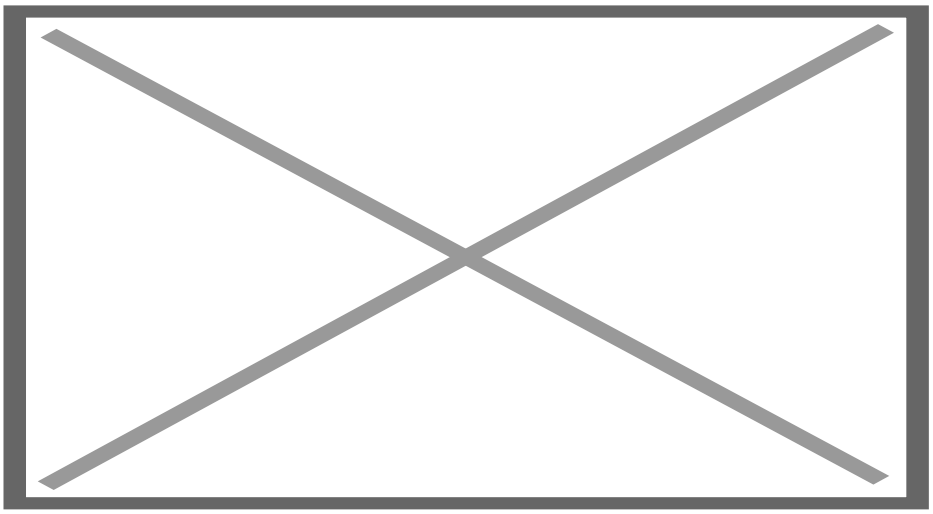

The Master's programme offers training that combines fundamental and practical teaching, delivered by academics or practitioners, depending on the subject. Some modules are specifically devoted to litigation or practice, in order to promote practical learning. In addition, there are professional practice modules comprising workshops, projects, an internship and a dissertation.
