Présentation

Objectives

The human rights and business study path aims to train top specialists in the international protection of human rights applicable to businesses. The programme includes theoretical and practical teaching (particularly as part of the law clinic and during the internship) intended to provide the students with comprehensive training. This dual approach enables students to aim either for quick entry into working life or further studies at doctoral level, since they will graduate with the required theoretical knowledge and research methodology.The preferred M1 for this study path is the Master in International and European law

- general (human rights or public-private). If the prerequisites are met, students may also be accepted upon completing the International and European public law
- business M1 or other M1s from other disciplines, "Business law" in particular students.
