Following its 2023 first edition, the Graduate School of Law of the University Paris-Saclay is proud to invite you to its second International Summer School, from June 17 to 21, 2024, at the Jean-Monnet Law School, on the Sceaux campus.

«Best Practices for a Sustainable Ecosystem» is chosen as the main theme of the year. This theme is built upon the one explored last year to raise awareness among participants about the challenges of the ecological transition in key areas or sectors where practices are changing or will have to change. After a first morning dedicated to the discussion of general concepts and issues, each day will be devoted to a specific area, respectively finance, health, digitalization, fashion and common goods. The aims are to highlight the best practices adopted and to reflect on new practices to be put in place.

Prestigious guests, professors from University Paris-Saclay and PhD students will share their expertise on this topic in the field of law but also other disciplines (public health, sciences...) through Master classes, workshops and conferences from young researchers.

The International Summer School will be held in English and will welcome students from the University of Paris-Saclay as well as from all over Europe. Participating students will also have the opportunity to attend social events. At the end of the week, a certificate of participation will be awarded at a closing cocktail party to be held at Sceaux city hall on Friday 21 June.
